Win a Rough Game by a Score of 28 to 0 -Big Tackles Plough Their Way Through the Home Team's Defence Seventy-five-Yard Run by Capt. Barry

The active, aggressive and brawny youths Yale to close scores on the football field, met Columbia at the Polo Grounds yesterday and completely outplayed the local eleven. They shattered Columbia's hopes of a score time after time, played havoc with her offence by throwing it back and riddled her defence by swift end runs and catapult line smashes from the tackle-back formation. Brown won by a score of 28 to 0 and the small assemblage of Brown students saw their team win so easily they wearled of cheering, sending forth a weird, siren-like shriek now and then just to keep warm. Of the 5,000 spectators, including Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Vanderbilt, many were Columbia students and these never ceased to encourage their team with yells and songs, but though they waged the vocal battle bravely, it was in a hopeless cause. It was the most important game of the season locally, but as a contest it was a mere trampling down of one team by an adversary that was fleeter of foot, stronger in team development and better versed in the science and wiles of gridiron strife.

It was preeminently a game of rushing, with kicking in the background. Nevertheless there was a good deal of open play. The ends were circled often, the making of holes permitted of frequent tackling in the open and the numerous Brown touchdowns were the source of as many ensuing kickoffs and the consequent scattering of the men, which embellishes the sport for the spectator. It was also a rough game. Nobody was disqualified, but rough work was liberal in quantity, impromptu wrestling matches and the jamming of a player's head in the damp cries of "put him off." or "rule him out." Yale fr free of "put him off." or "rule him out." Yale fr in their often punctuated the contest when a couple 5 to 0. of opposing players would get into a contro-versy of their own. Referee McCracken thortened the second half to 21% minutes, is it was growing dark. This was at a time when Columbia was showing symptoms of the only real attack she had displayed in the game, and Coach Morley of Columbia declared that the referee had no right to call the game, and Coach Morley of Columbia declared that the referee had no right to call the game in this manner. The rules give an official authority to shorten a game, but the distribution of defensive playing in the first half, when they held for downs after the Elis had carried the ball to the 3-yard etipulate that he must notify the captains before play begins. "It's as dark now as before play begins. "It's as dark now as it has been all afternoon," protested Morley, but the light was getting poor when the game ended and the outlook for a columbia score was very slim, no matter how long the game. The Brown players got into their attack hard and fast and helped the runner along in fine style. What with dragging, pushing and lifting they negotiated many an extra yard. The tackle-back grouping was used by Brown with irresistible effect. This play splintered Columbia resistance as a ten-inch shell splinters a pane of giass. The Brown tackles, Webb and Shechan, tall, strong chaps, were stars. Whether running from back of their line or from their piaces in the line, they seldom failed to tear off gains in big chunks and they were the maintary when Brown had to gain or lose the ball on downs. The Brown back were just as efficient in doing their share of the work, especially when aided by the tackle-back arrangement. Capt. Barry got over the ground like a deer when there was the least opening and threaded his way through the centre.

In a game so one-sided and with the ball in Brown's possession so much it was hard to pick out good points in Columbia's play. Man for man and as a team Brown excelled. Weekes made two or three good end runs for Columbia, but his interference did not compare with Brown's and the Columbia captain was outshone by the Brown backs. Brown's ends met the Columbia interference before it was fairly under way. Russ was a strong point in the Brown defence, and both he and little Schwinn were on the spot every time on punts and missed no tackles. Schwinn was the point at which Columbia's end runs were aimed, and for his weight he performed capably. Poor success attended Columbia's efforts to break the Brown line, for one reason because the Brown line was quicker to get.

a touchdown by a one-yard plunge through the centre. Colter missed the goal, making the score 23 to 0.

Barry caught the next kick-off, but the Columbia men got down nimbly and Barry failed to gain. The next moment he darted out of the line-up and ran eighteen, but the ball was brought back and given to Columbia for holding. The leather was only fifteen yards from the goal line and here was Columbia's best opportunity to score. Weekes twisted through tackle five yards from a close formation. That was as close as Columbia came to a score, for the Brown men, being on their toes, broke through and held Columbia hard and fast. Brown took the ball on downs, showing that her defence was to be counted on in a pinch. Barry punted to Weekes on Brown's 45-yard line and Schwinn had Weekes nailed in a twink-ling. Weekes punted poorly to Crowell, who was downed by Sladkus. The ball changed hands twice before Brown opened with another sharp attack. After Barry had made a 20-yard end run the shift formation, already referred to, was called into operation and Barry was at Columbia's 5-yard line when he was brought down. Lynch did the rest by ramming through the left flank for a touchdown, Colter missing the goal.

There was not much play after this, but

There was not much play after this, but Columbia was more energetic from this period to the fluish than at any previous time. Weekes and Smith bumped the Brown line so hard that it fell back at each assault and when Columbia had made twenty yards with a prospect of more the referre's whistle signalled the fluish. More of the speed shown by Columbia in the last two minutes would have made the score considerably closer. The summary:

HARVARD WINS FOOTBALL GAME BY SCORE OF 11 TO O.

Crimson's Showing a Disappointment-Kept on the Jump by Lighter Opponents -King, Centre, Not Allowed to Play Pending Inquiries as to Eligibility

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 8 .- Harvard could only Field this afternoon by a score of it to o Two touchdowns were made, one in each half, and in the first half Barnard missed goal. But to Pennsylvania is due a lion's share of the credit for the plucky fight she put up throughout the game. As for Har-vard, her showing was a bitter disappointment to the coaches and to the undergrad-uates, who looked for better things. The game clearly showed that Harvard is not hearly so strong as she has been rated all the season, and that she will have to take a big prace if she is to give Yale a fight at New Haven. The game showed the Crimson to be weakest when she is nearest her goal. Four times Harvard was within striking distance. She lost the ball once for holding on the 10-yard line, once on a fumble on the 1-yard line, another time on the 4-yard line on downs and still another time on the 17-yard line on a fumble. Harvard's first touchdown was made after Marshall had received the ball on a punt on the 28-yard line. From there, by steady Smith. on the 28-yard line. From there, by steady, Wolff. rushes, Harvard took the ball down the field. Goodman In the second half Stillman scored on a 52-Duell yard run around the end, and it was the Fisher pretiest play of the afternoon. Marshall yard run around the end, and it was the prettiest play of the afternoon. Marshall ran two punts in beautifully, but he did not get in any sensational runs such as he has been making with marked regularity this season. Once, however, he carried from the 15-yard line to the 54-yard line, straight through the Pennsylvania team, and he was barely kept from making a touchdown Kernan made two good runs, one around the end and the other through the line, but the Harvard captain is not in the best of condition, and he had to be taken out of the game after he had been twice injured.

For the third time this year Harvard's nonstrous bleachers were taxed to their capacity and this time with a most enthusi-astic crowd of spectators. Pennsylvania had the north stand, and along with the Pennsylvania rooters was the college band, and they kept things lively all the afternoon Harvard had the south stand, and with big Frantz leading the cheers the Harvard, under-graduates, also sided by the college band, were in their element. The air was cold and crisp, the sky fairly clear, and only a slight wind blowing from the southeast diagonally

The only feature of the day to mar it was the announcement early in the morning that at a midnight session on Friday the Harvard Athletic Committee had decided that King would not be allowed to play. A short time ago Coach Farley received a letter from Yale questioning King's eligibility, on the ground that he had played four years before coming to Harvard. But Harvard is by no means convinced that the giant centre is ineligible.

There was a feeling of indignation among the undergraduates because he was kept out of to-day's game, but the Athletic Comthe undergraduates because he was kept out of to-day's game, but the Athletic Committee would not allow King to play in a champinship game until his eligibility was assured. By the time of the Yale game his case will be settled and it is believed at Cambridge that he will be found all right. Harvard contends that the first year he played should not count as one of his four years, as the team was not a college team and as it was not sanctioned by the university.

The game to-day was characterized by the best spirit that has ever been shown between Harvard and Pennsylvania elevens. When men were hurt the players of the opposite eleven helped them. The game was, on the whole, a kicking game, and with Kernan and Stillman as her booters Harvard had the better of the argument in this respect; but her continued fumbling and holding offset this advantage. Pennsylvania's kicking game was much faster, however, Marshall ran the team slower to-day than he did last, week and when he had Pennsylvania on the run several times he did not follow up his advantage. On the other hand Dale kept his team on the jump all the time and he sent his plays off quickly. Harvard was utterly lacking in team work. There was none of that rallying around the man with the ball, targing and pulling him along, as Campbeil's eleven did hast fall.

Just over did the Crimson eleven get in a good intereference and that was on Stillman's 52-yard run for a touchdown. And on mass plays the hearterner was not sood.

YALE, 36; BUCKNELL, 5. Ells' Team Work Good, Showing the Benefit of the Rest. New Haven, Nov. 8.—The Yale team de-feated the strong Bucknell team at Yale Field this afternoon, 36 to 5. One-sided as the score looks the game was a hard one, for the Pennsylvania boys fought every inch of ground from start to finish. The Yale line and backs outplayed their opponents. The Yale team work was very good. Bowman, the Yale full back, was outpunted by McCormick, the full back of the visitors. The rest of the last few days did great good for Yale. The blue went into the contest with a dash that in the first half swept Bucknell off her feet. The Yale ends, which up to this time have been an eyesore, to-day played the game of the season and their work matched up well with the rest of the Yale line. Yale line and backs outplayed their opponents work matched up well with the rest of the Yale line.

Rafferty at left end put up a better game than Wilhelmi, but was forced to retire because he received a kick in the head which laid open his skull. He will be out of the game for several days. Glass tore through the Bucknell line repeatedly. Bucknell's touchdown was due to a fumble by Metcalf. Smith picked up the leather, and with a clear field started for the Elis' goal. Metcalf put after him, but as he made a dive for Smith the leather shot over the goal line just out of reach of the Yale man's fingers. Ozersky, Bucknell's right tackle, was guilty of some rather dirty football when lined up against Hamlin and was three times threatened with being put out of the game. Ozersky did not hesitate to talk back to the referee, who finally, losing his patience, gave Ozersky a kick that sent him back into the game as quiet as a lamb.

The New York University eleven defeated Rutgers at Ohio Field yesterday by a score Rutgers at Ohio Field yesterday by a score of 22 to 0. The game was bard fought by both teams, but the New York men did the better work. Rutgers pushed the ball to New York's five-yard line, but there the local team braced and put the ball over for the first touchdown without loss on downs. Another touch down was accredefore the whistle. The second half was even more strenuous than the first. New York ran the ball to the 10-yard line, where Rutgers seized it on a fumble and by a trick play ran it forty yards. It was again captured by New York on downs and the third touchdown was made. ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. S.—A lively game took place to-day between the Pingry School and the Trinity School of New York which resulted in a row that at one time promised to cause blood to flow. The game had proceeded to a point when Pingry had scored 11 points. It then became too dark to continue and the umptre announced that Pingry had scored 11 points, It then became too dark to continue and the umptre announced that Pingry had won by a score of 11 to 5. A howl went up from the Trinity players, wo said that the Pingry boys had, by giving up, forfeited the game. It took all the diplomacy of Manager Marsh to keep the players from coming to blows. Menacing attitudes were assumed by the stalwart footballers, but the presence of a policeman and the argument offered by friends of both sides stopped hostilities.

The cievens of Pratt Institute of Brooklyn and the be Witt Clinton High School lined up against each other yesterday at Jasper Oval. In the first half Lindo of De Witt Clinton High School scored a touchdown after five minutes of play. C. SAN PRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—The annual football game between the University of California and Stanford University to day resulted 16 to 6 in favor of California University. The field was heavy. Features of the rame were the punting of Overall and a sensational 85 yard run by Sherman, both of the University of California.

way Meet. The Parkway Driving Club held a special matinée meeting yesterday at Parkville. L. R. Acker, the driver who was hurt last week, was on hand though still very weak. He decided to devote the money subscribed to him by friends to the purchase of cups for two events, a 220 macing race and a 225 class trotting event, which will be held next Saturday.

Charles E. Bedford made great finishes in all three heats of the 222 class trotting and pacing event, winning by half a head in the first, by a quarter of a length in the second and by inches in the third.
